Lion is an emotional biographical drama based on Saroo Brierley's memoir A Long Way Home, released on 25 November 2016. The film tells the story of a young boy who gets lost in India, is adopted by an Australian couple, and grows up far from his roots. Years later, guided only by memories and Google Earth, he embarks on a heartfelt journey to reunite with his birth family, exploring themes of identity, hope, and belonging. The movie is directed by Garth Davis.

Starring Dev Patel, Nicole Kidman, Rooney Mara, and Sunny Pawar, the film's special feature is its powerful depiction of memory, determination, and the emotional bond of family, brought to life through stunning cinematography and moving performances. Lion is available for streaming on Netflix India or for rent on Amazon Prime Video and YouTube Movies. A memorable line that captures the heart of the story is: "It's all about finding your way back home.

SCAMS

Think It's a Reward? It's a SCAM!

In August 2025, Gurgaon police uncovered a major fake call centre scam in Sector 30, which had been duping people with fraudulent credit card offers for nearly three months. The racket was being run by Anuj, identified as the mastermind. After a complaint was filed on August 9, a police team led by SHO Inspector Naveen Kumar conducted a raid on August 22 and arrested six people—Ansar Khan (31), Ahjaz (27), Nisar Khan (20), Yogendra (29), Suraj Kumar (26), and Sarita (25). The gang's modus operandi was to impersonate bank officials and call unsuspecting victims, claiming to help them redeem unused credit card reward points. They would then send a link to download a malicious app, which secretly collected sensitive data like card numbers and OTPs. Using this access, they siphoned off money from victims' accounts, cleverly laundering the stolen funds through petrol cards that were later sold to taxi drivers for cash. The operation was exposed on August 23, and cases under cybercrime and fraud laws have been registered against the accused, while further investigations are ongoing to trace the money trail and other possible victims.

STORY TIME

The Story of August 1920 – Finance as a Weapon of Freedomi

It was 1st August 1920 when Mahatma Gandhi called upon Indians to join the Non-Cooperation Movement. But this was not a war with guns or swords—it was a war with money, markets, and choices.

Gandhi told the people: "Do not finance your own slavery. Refuse British goods, schools, and courts. Build your own institutions and wear your own clothes."

Soon, across towns and villages, the message spread like wildfire. Shops that once sold imported British cloth stood empty. Public bonfires were lit, and people proudly burned foreign garments, wrapping themselves instead in khadi spun by their own hands. For the first time, villagers felt that their spinning wheel could challenge an empire.

Students walked out of government schools and joined nationalist schools run by Indians. Lawyers gave up their practice in colonial courts, showing that justice should not depend on foreign rulers. Many leaders, once honored with British titles, returned them, saying they belonged only to their country.

The British began to feel the financial impact. Sales of imported goods dropped sharply, and their prestige was shaken. What had started as a boycott had grown into a financial revolution, where every rupee spent on local goods became a declaration of independence.

And so, August 1920 became remembered as the month when India turned the marketplace into a battlefield, proving that even without weapons, the power of finance could shake the strongest empire.
